

PLANT A TREE TODAY

Written by David L. Burrier © 1991

Plant a tree today and you may never know,
The shady comfort it will bring or the size that it will grow.

But plan to plan tomorrow and there may never be,
A tree to shade the future. Lost opportunity.

For planting is a matter of hope for years to come,
Which might just make a difference in the life of only one.

Those who live to see it will appreciate the shade,
And maybe they will follow the example you have made.

So plant a tree today and feel the joy of it
Cause the purpose of your planting is for tomorrow's benefit.
